

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Simon Elliott is studying for a PhD at the University of Kent, researching the County during the Roman occupation. Specifically he is looking at the association between villa settlement and the extractive industries, particularly ragstone quarrying in the Medway Valley, millstone manufacturing around Folkestone and iron manufacturing in the Weald. Simon has a Masters Degree in Archaeology from UCL and a Masters Degree in War Studies from KCL, and has been widely published, most recently in History Today and Archaeologia Cantiana.